Program – County Supervisor Ray Carroll

Carroll earned a BA in philosophy at Regis College in Denver and worked with Casa de los Niños before becoming a county supervisor. He opposes the Rosemont Mine because of their plan to trade a promise of low quality CAP water for Green Valley's potable groundwater, which gives the mine bigger yield and higher profits. He discussed the limited life of the Sahuarita landfill and the large expense of closing it (among others). He would like to see debt advisory and budget review committees, since Pima County has twice the debt of the other 14 AZ counties combined. And he told an interesting tale of gerrymandering.
